B. Director's Comments

Director Swindler

Director Swindler gave updates on classes. He explained that all students were sent home for two weeks due to Tropical Storm Debby. All students reported back today. The students in BLE Class 814 were graduated on Monday August 5.

He reported that due to the storm two small classes (BLE 817 and BLE 818) were combined into one. He stated that BLE Class 818 will start in two weeks. In September we will be back on our regular schedule. So, all the graduations were moved up two weeks and all our speakers agreed to change their schedules.

Director Swindler provided an update regarding housing at the Academy several of the high-water rescue teams.

In closing he also provided an update on the generator project as well. The generator has been scheduled to be delivered in October if not sooner.

OLD BUSINESS

Agenda Item 5

EPPS Presentation – Chris Cowan, provided a brief update on the Excellence of Policing Public Safety (EPPS) program in collaboration with the Law Enforcement Training Council.

He reported that the Excellence of Policing Public Safety (EPPS) program began about a year and half ago and has been gradually gaining momentum across the state. He explained that law enforcement agencies across the state are eager for support when it comes to leadership. The goal is to make sure that the EPPS program provides relevant training, resources, and instruction, making sure that the academic portions of the training are rigorous.

South Carolina Criminal Justice Academy

He believes this program is unique. The training consists of 70% interaction and 30% instruction, which makes it practical, applicable, and actionable. This training can be completed in 2 – 3 days or 5 days, afterwards officers are able to go back to their agencies and apply what they have learned. The goal during this timeframe is to get feedback on the things that worked, and the things did not work, that way the program can provide these officers with supplemental or advance training and support.

He stated that the program is designed to include agencies from the smallest agencies in the state to the largest agencies in the state, making sure that these agencies have the ability and the support they need to make sure that they are supporting each other. He explained how the program can create additional networks and strategic partnerships.

In conclusion, he added that additional cohorts are starting in 2025 throughout the state. He stated that Ad Hoc trainings can be provided if an agency makes a request for support. The program provides collaborative communications within the community and promotes working with each other. The principles of the initiative are leadership and management, collaborative communications, organizational change, and emerging tech budgets.

Director Swindler gave additional updates and provided feedback he received from Chief Amy Prock, Myrtle Beach Police Department on the EPPS program.

NEW BUSINESS

Agenda Item 6

Reserve Officer transitioning to Class 1 with another agency

Sheriff Foster reported they would like to hire a reserve officer from another agency. He added that he wanted to see if a reserve officer was not afforded the opportunity to become a Class 1 with their current agency if they are able to go to another agency, who can provide a Class 1 position.

Council has a brief discussion the current requirements to be a reserve officer who transitions to a Class 1 position.

During the discussion and having questions asked and answered by James Fennell, Sheriff Foster made a motion to change the standard to allow reserve officers, who meet the minimum requirements, to go Class 1 with another agency. Captain Gallam seconded the motion.

Council voted unanimously to change the standard to allow reserve officers, who meet the minimum requirements, to go Class 1 with another agency.
